Subject: FW: URLs for EPA web pages

FYI – this is what they are advising – Mary I know we talked about them delaying the transition for Tittabawassee and you had a good legal reason to do that – what is that argument again so I can attempt to create the same exemption for the upcoming proposed plan for Allied...

Thanks!

Subject: URLs for EPA web pages

All:

While our site web pages are in the process of being changed over to the new pages, please use www.epa.gov in fact sheets, ads, etc. that are coming out in September since we don't know what the new urls will be. People will have to go to the main EPA web site and do a search. If someone types in a current url for one of our sites, they will still work. When the new web pages go live on Sept. 30, they will be redirected to the new pages.

For now, use r5websupport to have your current web pages updated through September. If there is a real need to create a new web page now, it can be done, but if it can wait a few months until a process is in place, that would be desirable.
